“ I came to know Sarah because she and my mother are very dear friends. Sarah was like a second mother to me growing up and treated my brother and me like her own children. I cannot express how my heart aches for her family. Therefore, I would like to share a few of my fondest memories.

Sarah and mom were country music fan groupies. Mary, Melissa, Matt, and myself spent many summers at county fairs while our moms were meeting artist such as Lee Greenwood, Ronnie McDowell, Ronnie Milsap, and Alabama to name a few. We also spent many weekends at Sarah house. Mary and I liked to play cards, drink ice tea or coke, and watch TV while our moms talked. Sarah also took on a mentor role, and she taught me how to wash dishes and laundry. We talked about about puberty and boys in which she had one advice "stay away from them."

Sarah and I worked at Hills Dept store together. On occasion we would go out to eat and I would put my daughter Stephanie who was two at the time to say "there's you a man Jane" Sarah would laugh and say " no Stephanie Jane doesn't want a man" which would make Stephanie shout it louder while Sarah hid her seat.

I lost touch with Sarah over the year but was so blessed to connect with her this past year. My last conversations with Sarah was about her health and family. She talked about her beautiful daughters and the joy she felt being a granny. I will miss you Sarah.

May the constant love and caring of friends carry the family through this difficult time.
