“ Jennifer is my bestfriend and I will never ever let her memory go. She was so kind, loving, and giving there wasn't nothing she wouldn't do for loved ones even strangers. She was rotten too we had a lot of fun times. We have a lot of firsts together. We got our first apartment together we moved in with our clothes and two paint cans as our furniture. But we made it a home. We cooked on the grill together for the first time. Btw we about burnt our house down but we did it. There is so many stories and memories we had. We had so many more memories to make and so much more to do. We had such big plans. My birthday will never be the same bc we were born 3 days apart and we always made our big day special and now I feel empty and lost without you. I believe you are still with us Jen i know you can now see how many truly loved you. The day God took you home heaven gained one of the most beautiful angels ever you are pure and real as it can get. I feel selfish in a way bc your gone and I want you back but I know God needed you more. Your with grandma now and I know the pain you carried without her. I love you beautiful I will hold into you until we meet again. Please wait for me baby girl. I need you.
