As we grew up our mom was known as the neighborhood kids' mom. She loved all the neighborhood kids, but especially her own. Raising six children was not an easy task, but our mom made it easy. All of us were treated exactly the same. You ate what was yours, and dared not take the others food or a wooden spoon would crack your fingers. We knew when it was time to eat lunch or dinner by the sound of the "whistle" she would blow from the back door. She made order out of chaos and gave us not only a wonderful life but each other. She was the most fun loving, but strict and organized person one could ever meet, and she loved family over everything. We love you Momma and Grandma and look forward to the day we will see you again.
