“ I met Becky in the third grade. We weaved in and out of each others life every since that day. I knew Becky's funny side, her inner thoughts and worries and on occasion I seen her dark side. We had a lot in common, loved the same movies, loved animals, and was known as the terrible two. I know all her fur babies met her at the bridge and she watches over all of us now. She finally found the peace she could never find here on earth.
